Your next Sunglasses

Here are a few features to consider when you buy your next sunglasses:

- Lens material - Sunspecs are usually made with plastic lenses. These are light and impact-resistant.
- Lens quality - Good quality lenses are free of distortions and have evenly distributed colour. Distortion is extremely common in cheaper sunglasses.
- Lens darkness - For most purposes look for a tint that blocks 70% of light. Tints that block less than 60% are mainly only used for fashion since they offer only mild protection.
- Frame and lens design - Normal frames similar to prescription spectacle frames filter the light coming through the lenses. Wrap-around styles can keep extra light from your eyes if required.
- Frame material - Most inexpensive sunglasses use simple plastic or wire frames, while name-brand sunglasses use high-strength, light-weight composite or metal frames.
- Brand recognition - People associate certain brands with quality and extravagance - but this comes at a price. It is possible to find quality sunglasses that don't have a brand-name price.

If you'd like to discuss your next pair of sunglasses, please call us on 01270 505504 or just call in... we look forward to seeing you.
